Yesterday's Hazelton Plain-Speaker in commenting on the production, "The Face in the Moonlight," which was presented in that city Wednesday evening, says: "A fair sized and appreciative audience saw "The Face in the Moonlight" last night, and with Mr. Mantell in the dual role of Victor and Rabat, jit was probably the finest performance ever given in this city Manuell is probably the handsomest man on the American stage and years geem to add to his barrels. In "The Face in the Mountignt" he is given amile opportunity to prove to the ments, satisfaction of all that a love story, A lar pure and simple, will always carry a deep-seated influence, and when portrayed by a bandsome lover and graceful maiden, always wins the plandits of the multitude. The nerote part of last night's production deals in Mr. Mantell's wonderful power as a character. actor, changing with lightning like rapidity from the low and course Rabat to the generous and noble Victor. At no part of the play is this so wonder-fully portrayed as in the last act when Robat is carried off by the gondearms, after possessing himself on the way to the guillotine, Victor walks on in his full regimentals on his way to by shot. It was a wonderul pirce of work and well deserved the reception it met. Miss Charlotte Behrens as Lucille ably suported Mr Mantell and divided houors with him.

"Saving up" is an education in itself. Saving up for an education is good training for a child, much better than saving up for the money's sake or for the sake of spending the money on its selfish pleasures.

to save in a good cause as a bad one. Easier, for the child is very quickly interested in a good cause. You can make the children save up for their own education. The great thing is to get them interested. To a child properly nandled such an education is a pleasure, not a task.

And you know, if you have children, that it's just as easy to teach them

The reason children are not, as a rule, interested in their studies is because they are usually given several books on a few subjects. Generally on subjects they are not interested in-subjects in which they are not naturally fitted to excel.

Let a child once find out, however, in what groove its natural falents lie and you will see it band all its energies in that direction. With a parent's wise help in the proper channel it is bound to be a "cut above the

The way to help is to give fyour child a library that contains information on everything. Information in an entertaining form, Get it interested in a plan for saving up to get this library, and when secured your child will study it with avidity.

There's only one library full of information on all subjects. Full of the latest information. The Encyclopedia Britannics. It is essentially one that will interest the young, in that it contains information on every subject known to mankind,
